This is an exciting time to be in the field of development at Indiana University. The university has just concluded its very successful Matching the Promise campaign and is well positioned to focus on the future.

I am very pleased to introduce you to fellow members of the Jacobs School of Music’s new development team: C. F. Callihan II, associate development officer; Amanda Schkeeper, assistant development officer; and Matthew Wisley, development assistant. This staff of dedicated individuals will allow us to think and act more broadly with respect to our constituents.

How can we more deeply engage donors and expand the reach of the Jacobs School of Music? In what ways will we connect with our constituency so that we may share our story and case for support? Together with my colleagues, I am eager to provide answers to these questions and to develop a fundraising program that not only expands our current trends but also broadens our reach through enhanced methods of communication such as social media.

I am sincerely grateful to our IU Foundation colleagues Gene Tempel, Marti Heil, Eileen Savage, John Keith, and Brian Yeley for their constant support and willingness to share their wisdom and knowledge with us. Our combined efforts will allow us to further the cause of the arts in society.

There are many individuals on whose shoulders we stand and whose thoughtfulness and generosity help to make this school all that it is today. Their investment puts opportunity within reach of so many at the Jacobs School.

Every day I am reminded of the words of Ralph Waldo Emerson, who said, “To know that even one life has breathed easier because you have lived—that is to have succeeded.” We are grateful to the friends of the Jacobs School for all they make possible, and we look forward to what we will achieve together.

Sincerely,

Melissa Korzec
Senior Development Officer
The Promise of the Future

by Melissa Korzec

In 2003, Indiana University launched its Matching the Promise campaign. The campaign was designed to give donors a chance to double the value of their gifts by providing a one-to-one match on a donor’s investment in IU. The goal of the campaign was to provide scholarships and fellowships to help keep IU affordable and attractive to top-notch students, provide funding for faculty chairs to attract and retain leading academic talent, and construct high-quality teaching and research facilities.

At its conclusion in 2010, the Matching the Promise campaign for IU Bloomington exceeded its revised goal of $1.1 billion—making it the most successful campaign in IU history. Regardless of the economic downturn, donors like you supported scholarships, faculty appointments, and enhanced university facilities.

As a result of this campaign, average out-of-pocket expenses for in-state students declined by 12%. A total of $36.7 million was raised to support faculty chairs and professorships. Furthermore, the campaign energized 188,025 cherished supporters of Indiana University.

During this campaign, the Jacobs School of Music was fortunate to receive a naming gift of $40.6 million from Barbara and David H. Jacobs, which provided for endowed faculty positions as well as student scholarships and fellowships. Additionally, the Jacobs School received $44 million from the Lilly Endowment to construct a new faculty studio building. This new facility will provide technologically and acoustically superior teaching and practice facilities to rival those of any music school or conservatory in the world.

In the end, when a donor makes a gift to an organization, it’s about more than nostalgia or loyalty or pride. It’s an act of imagination: a transformative investment in today’s school that forecasts tomorrow’s promise—bringing us closer to the realization of our potential.

MARVIN CARMACK, 96

Marvin Carmack, a longstanding friend of the Jacobs School, passed away on July 6, 2010, in Bloomington, Ind. An only child, he was born in 1913, in Vermillion County, Ind. In 1960, Carmack married Joan Margaret Scully of Western Springs, Ill.

Carmack completed his A.B. Honors degree at the University of Illinois with a major in Organic Chemistry in 1937. He completed the requirements for the Master of Science in 1939 and the Ph.D. in 1940. Carmack returned to the University of Illinois in 1940-41 for post-doctoral research. In the fall of 1941, Carmack joined the faculty of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. In addition to teaching organic chemistry, he was the official investigator for three years during World War II. In 1958, he began his tenure at Indiana University, where he remained for the rest of his career, retiring in 1983.
Many Thanks to Our Donors

The Jacobs School of Music wishes to recognize those individuals, corporations, and foundations who have made contributions to the school between Jan. 1, 2010, and Dec. 31, 2010. Those listed here are among the Jacobs School’s most dedicated and involved benefactors, and it is their outstanding generosity that enables the IU Jacobs School of Music to continue to be the finest institution of its kind in the nation.

Dean’s Circle

The Indiana University Jacobs School of Music Dean’s Circle includes individuals dedicated to making a difference in the cultural life of our nation. These unrestricted gifts of opportunity capital support the areas of greatest need, including financial aid, faculty, academic opportunity, and visiting artists.

Your lifetime connection to IU.

Scott Addison, BM’99, Voice Performance
Life Member, IU Alumni Association
Past President, Jacobs School of Music Alumni Board

“My experience at IU provided me with a truly world-class education, rich with experience and opportunity. In addition to immersing myself in the arts and discovering what it takes to reach the highest levels of musical achievement through my studies at the Jacobs School of Music, IU armed me with a broader foundation of knowledge and skill that directly impacted my professional growth and personal achievement.

Being a part of the IU family through the Alumni Association has allowed me to continue to build upon the irreplaceable network of friends, colleagues, and resources developed during my four years of study in Bloomington.”
